No other yarn spinner has more experience in supply chain management

Attaining the results that consumers want isn't easy. It requires beneficial partnerships that guarantee qualified sourcing, efficient manufacturing, and the desired garment attributes. At Buhler, we source from the best suppliers and interact with our yarns through every step of the process — ensuring that each garment reaches retail with the utmost quality.

Our supply chain services include partnership building, technical support, and our industry-renowned quality control. Over twenty years of successful partnerships speak for themselves, but so do our products.

US Supima Cotton is superior in length, strength and fineness — forever achieving a high-quality product. Dedicated to conservation and carbon neutrality, it is preferred by luxury brands for its comfort and durability.

Lenzing Micro TENCEL® offers strength, softness and comfort. Made from FSC-certified pulp on a closed loop processor and certified by the Oeko-Tex® Standard 100, Micro TENCEL® moves moisture and reduces bacterial growth.

Lenzing MicroModal® with Edelweiss technology is the ideal fiber for flexible, graceful clothing. Thanks to Edelweiss technology, it's now more sustainable, biodegradable, and renewable, while retaining its soft and brilliant properties.

Biotech Firm Looking to Commercialize Spider Silk for Textiles

Spider silk is strong and flexible, but developing it commercially has been problematic.

Lansing, Mich.-based biotech company Kraig Biocraft Laboratories Inc. has obtained proprietary genetic engineering technology to create recombinant fibers based on the spider-silk gene sequences.

The company is developing the fibers for the high-strength and performance markets.

The company has what it believes is a “practical and cost-effective” means for producing spider silk-based fibers “on an industrial scale.”

Kraig Biocraft is working with Spring City, Tenn.-based safety- and protective-fabric manufacturer SSM Industries to jointly commercialize recombinant spider silk, which Kraig Biocraft is calling Monster Silk.

SSM Industries’ products are used by the U.S. military, the auto-racing industry, firefighters, first responders and industrial applications.

Together the two companies plan to develop knitted and woven textiles made from Monster Silk.

“SSM Industries Inc. is an American company with a proven track record of innovation and excellence in technical textiles and protective apparel, so we are delighted to be working with them,” said Kraig Chief Executive Officer and founder Kim Thompson in a statement. “This ... is a big step forward in moving our spider-silk products from the laboratory and toward meeting the increasing demand for innovative, high-strength materials; technical textiles; and protective composites. I believe that it greatly accelerates Kraig’s access to critical protective-clothing and technical markets.”

Isko Highlights the Trends for Spring/Summer '14

Turkish denim mill Isko recently introduced several new fabric innovations for its Spring/Summer 2014 collection.

Dubbed “Happy Denim,” the collection includes ongoing fabrications, such as Isko Reform, a high-elasticity denim with good recovery; prints; and comfort stretch fabrics for menswear. In addition, Isko has several new developments.

“Smashed” is a process to give denim a shiny appearance and a lightweight feel. During the finishing process, the fabric is actually “smashed,” which results in a thinner fabric, according to Isko. When washed, Smashed fabrics have a vintage look and hand feel.

New jeggings fabrications include 8-ounce fabrics with Isko Recall technology for good recovery without sacrificing the cotton hand feel.

Isko Loom FX is a high-elasticity stretch denim for customers who typically prefer the look of rigid denim. When washed, the fabric maintains the twill line of a rigid fabric. Isko Loom FX comes in several color and construction options.

Sunfaded is a new concept for the company. The denim fades with a yellow/gray cast for light colors and bleached effects, much like the look of traditional indigo faded in the sun. Different weights and constructions, including rigid and stretch, are available.

Isko Pop has a soft hand and a smooth surface. This season, the company is introducing new shades and lighter weights, and Isko is highlighting the fabric’s wash results.

Eye Candy is the neon joggling group in orange, pink, yellow and green. There is also a PFD version with four-colored weft yarns to allow designers to create two-tone garment-dye shades. A third variation has two different color combinations for warp and weft, as well as a shiny “spectra” finish for a wide variety of color-matching possibilities.

The company is also introducing Ferra Colors, new indigo rope and piece-dye shades.

Isko is a trademark of Sanko Textile, as are Isko Reform, Isko Recall, Isko Loom FX, Isko Pop and Eye Candy. For more information, visit www.isko.com.tr—A.A.N.

Pantone Releases Fall '13 Color Report

“Multi-faceted” emerald green, a yellow-hued Linden green and accents of Mykonos blue are among the Fall colors for women and men, according to color forecaster Pantone LLC, which recently released its “Pantone Fashion Color Report Fall 2013.”

“The Fall 2013 palette allows for that versatility and experimentation,” said Leatrice Eiseman, executive director of the Pantone Color Institute, in a statement.

Pantone forecasts Spring greens evolving and, when paired with “bold, meditative” Mykonos blue, the shades create a “classic and relaxed Fall look.”

The report is available for free on Pantone’s website (www.pantone.com/fall2013) and features the top 10 colors for women and men, as well as designer sketches and additional information. Swatch cards for all 10 colors are also available, for $99.50. Pantone is a subsidiary of Carlstadt, N.J.-based X-Rite Corp. Celebrating its 50th anniversary this year, Pantone offers a range of color products for designers and consumers.—A.A.N.

Intertek's Web App Helps Childrenswear Firms Track New CPSIA Rules

Childrenswear manufacturers and importers have a new set of rules to comply with the safety standards under the Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act (CPSIA).

The Consumer Product Safety Commission's new third-party testing and certification rules were approved in 2011 but did not go into effect until this month. Under the new rules, domestic manufacturers, importers and private-label makers are required to meet two new rules:

1. "If there is a material change to the product—such as changes in the product design, manufacturing process or the source of component parts—firms must re-test and re-certify that the product complies with federal safety standards."

2. "Firms must keep records on the testing and certification for their children's products."

Companies that meet the two new rules can label their products "Meets CPSC Safety Requirements," although labeling is voluntary.

Companies may "use component part and finished product testing conducted by their suppliers in order to meet the testing and certification requirements."

Manufacturers may also use representative samples for testing provided the samples are "known to be representative of all the products manufactured or imported since their last periodic or certification test."

Third-party testing must be done by a CPSC-accepted lab. The commission has on its website (www.cpsc.gov) a list of approved labs across the world.

Oak Brook, Ill.-based testing and compliance-solutions provider Intertek is one of the companies on the list, with CPSC-accredited labs that administer testing for toys, juvenile products, textiles and footwear to meet CPSIA standards.

Intertek also has a Web-based application that helps companies assemble their technical files along the supply chain.

Importers or manufacturers enter product-specific information into iComply, which produces a test plan for production and then generates the needed compliance documents and stores them in a file that is accessible 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The application has an annual license fee of $99 per account.

In addition, Intertek has recently expanded its services portfolio to help companies comply with recently proposed changes to California Proposition 65, which aims to protect drinking water from toxic substances that cause cancer and birth defects and to reduce exposure to those chemicals by requiring warning labels.

The California Office of Environmental Health Hazard Assessment (OEHHA) recently announced a notice of intent to add Bisphenol A to the California Proposition 65 list of chemicals known to cause reproductive toxicity.

If adopted, the maximum allowable dose level for BPA will be 290 micrograms per day.

The California Proposition 65 listing is not a proposed ban of BPA, but it will regulate that warning labels are to be applied to consumer products if the potential exposure to consumers will exceed the maximum allowable dose level.

Intertek has extensive experience in providing Proposition 65 services for products including chemical testing and analysis, toxicological risk assessments, exposure assessments, strategy development, consulting, training, supply chain-compliance support, and litigation support.

RILA Goal for '13: 'E-fairness' Between Online and Bricks-and-Mortar Retailers

The Retail Industry Leaders Association (RILA) hopes to see "e-fairness" legislation passed in 2013.

The Arlington, Va.-based retail organization included e-fairness in its list of its top public-policy priorities for the year in its "Retail Industry Leaders Association 2013 Public Policy Agenda: Empowering Retailers and Consumers to Grow the Economy," which was distributed to congressional offices.

RILA is taking aim at online retailers in states that exempt them from collecting sales tax on items purchased online. "The laws governing sales-tax collection put Main Street retailers at a competitive disadvantage to their online-only competitors," a RILA statement read.

In 2011, RILA and other industry organizations pressured online e-commerce giant Amazon.com to begin collecting sales tax for items purchased by California shoppers. According to the organization, "Because of public pressure brought to bear by RILA and its partners, Amazon.com will be required to collect sales tax in over 50 percent of the U.S. consumer market by the end of this year."

Other 2013 priorities for RILA include passage of comprehensive tax reform, healthcare, labor regulations, consumer privacy, extended swipe-fee reform, flexible rules-of-origin for apparel within the Trans-Pacific Partnership Act, and expansion of the Information Technology Agreement, a World Trade Organization agreement concerning information-technology products.

The complete list of RILA public-policy agenda can be found at www.rila.org/agenda.—A.A.N.
