Lenzing Launches Tencel Brand Shop at ShopStyle

Lenzing, the Austrian company that makes Tencel fibers, has partnered with fashion search engine ShopStyle (www.shopstyle.com) to open The Tencel Denim Shop.

Located at ShopStyle, The Tencel Denim Shop features more than 50 denim styles made with Tencel by brands such as Bella Dahl, DL1961, Level 99, Mavi, NYDJ and the Blue Shirt Shop.

"This shop connects directly with consumers who are seeking distinctively comfortable denim products, featuring brilliant new Spring styles from prominent U.S. and European brands," said Tricia Carey, director of global business development for denim at Lenzing. "Tencel fibers are the ideal addition for denim breathability and softness. This campaign highlights those attributes and appeals to consumers interested in making educated buying decisions."

Tencel adds additional comfort and sustainability to denim. Tencel is made from wood pulp from sustainably harvested eucalyptus trees and is produced in a closed-loop manufacturing process at Lenzing plants in the U.S., the U.K. and Austria.

A&E Launches Reflective Thread

American & Efird, the Mount Holly, N.C.-based industrial sewing thread maker, has introduced Anefil Reflector reflective thread.

Anefil Reflector can be used for coverstitch and over-edge applications for activewear, workwear, safety apparel, denim, swimwear, footwear and other markets.

"A&E's spirit of innovation continues with this new reflective product, Anefil Reflector," said Mark Hatton, A&E vice president Americas. "Offered in a Tex 120 size, Anefil Reflector adds another layer of functionality in sewing that has traditionally been dominated by reflective tape. This product is a versatile, decorative sewing thread and a valuable addition to the reflective market."

A&E products are produced in 23 countries worldwide and sold in more than 100 countries. For more information, contact mark.hatton@amefird.com or call (704) 951-2516 or visit www.amefird.com—A.A.N.

Invista's Cordura Introduces Ultra-Strong Nylon 6.6 Staple Fiber

Invista, the Wichita, Kan.-based maker of Lycra and Cordura fibers, has introduced a new high-strength Cordura, made with the company's T420HT fiber technology.

The company said this development is the strongest nylon 6.6 fiber it has ever produced. The company has been working on the patent-pending technology for two years.

"At Invista, an ongoing dedication to innovation is in our DNA," said Anthony Green, global Cordura-brand business director, in a statement. "Our latest T420HT technology launch is one in a series of new qualifying Cordura-brand fiber breakthroughs to come as we continue to push the boundaries of durable possibilities."

Cordura Nyco (a nylon/cotton) blend based on the T420HT high-tenacity fiber is undergoing wear trials for military applications. The durable but lightweight fabrics, including Cordura Nyco Extreme and Cordura Nyco Tactical fabrics, can be used for military uniforms, outdoor apparel and workwear, according to the company. Dickies will introduce the Dickies Pro with Cordura fiber technology workwear collection for Fall 2017.

Cordura—which resists abrasions, tears and scuffs—is used for everything from luggage, upholstery and backpacks to footwear, military equipment, tactical wear, workwear and performance apparel.

This year, Cordura brand is celebrating its 50th anniversary. To celebrate, the company will launch several new fiber and fabric innovations, new applications, and collaborations.

"This very special year is going to be one for the books as we unveil our most groundbreaking innovations and collaborations," said Cindy McNaul, global Cordura brand and marketing director, in a statement. "Since commercialization of the fabric in 1967, the Cordura brand has worked hand in hand with its mill and supply-chain partners to break molds and blaze new trails—with all signs, roads and paths leading to a next generation of durable solutions. And 2017 may be the best year yet."

In addition to Cordura T420HT, Invista will introduce high-strength Cordura Denim and Cordura Combat Wool. The company is working with Cone Denim to introduce Cordura Selva Denim and with Artistic Milliners on Cordura Combat Wool. Invista has also updated its partnership with Woolrich to introduce a new collection of Wool-Dura, which includes both Cordura and Woolrich wool. The fabric is woven in Woolrich's 187-year-old mill in Pennsylvania.

A 50th Anniversary Capsule Collection will be introduced in partnership with Struktur Studio and Artistic Milliners. The "retro-futuristic" collection will include garments made with Cordura Combat Wool, Cordura Denim/Tencel blends and Schoeller "change" and "cerasphere" coating technologies.—A.A.N.
